John Jungman Joins Solomon Associates as Senior Consultant for Pipeline and Terminals Studies

Veteran operations executive brings more than two decades of liquid products terminals experience.

DALLAS, April 29, 2010 – Solomon Associates, the leading performance improvement company for the global energy industry, today announced that John Jungman has joined the company as a senior consultant. Jungman will focus on the company's Worldwide Liquid Pipeline Study (Pipeline Study) and Worldwide Liquid Terminals Study (Terminals Study). He will report to Hank Brolick, vice president, pipelines.

Jungman brings 21 years of liquid products terminal experience to Solomon Associates. Most recently, he was executive vice president of Westway Terminal Company, where he led operations and engineering.

“John's background provides another great example of why clients choose Solomon Associates over other energy industry consulting firms,” said Dave Bossung, executive vice president of Solomon Associates. “We offer far more senior-level experience in field operations than any other firm in our business – enabling us to deliver real-world insights and solutions. John is a wonderful addition to our team.”

Prior to Westway Terminal Company, Jungman held terminal management positions at TransMontaigne Product Services, ITAPCO, and Tenneco Oil Company. He also served as a special projects consultant for Intercontinental Terminals Company. He has served twice on the board of directors of the International Liquid Terminal Association.

Jungman has an MBA and bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from the University of Texas at Austin.
